Student Advisory Committee (SACs) are student groups established within departments to promote communication and interaction among students, faculty, staff, and administrators. The Department of History's Undergraduate SAC (HSAC) is comprised of history students. HSAC participates in various activities during the academic year such as fund raising, arranging guest lecturers & workshops, performing and facilitating the Faculty Retention, Promotion, and Tenure, conducting course evaluations, publishing newsletters, and providing other events. They also serve as a liaison between students and professors and a resource for students with questions or concerns. Students may contact the HSAC President, B. Noah Rosenberg (b.n.rosenberg@utah.edu) or the Academic Advisor, Amarilys Scott (amarilys.scott@utah.edu) for more information.

SACs are a part of student government. Membership in a SAC develops many leadership skills such as teamwork, constructive evaluation, organization, writing, and presentation. SAC members work closely with professors and get to know them on a one-to-one basis. Student government participation, leadership skills, and personal letters of recommendation from professors are valuable assets for resumes, scholarship applications, and graduate school applications.
